New Arrivals in Stamped Pieces for Those Who Embroider

Those who are at all interested in Art Needlework will find the new arrivals of "Royal Society" Stamped Pieces most interesting. They will be on display in our Art Needlework Section in annex, and we invite you to see them tomorrow.

Among the new ideas being shown is that of the crochet stitch used in place of lace for edges and insertion designs, as well as in combination with embroidery stitches in the motifs. We will display several handsome finished pieces showing this effect

Among the stamped pieces just received are Center Pieces, Pillow Tops, Table Runners, Scarfs, Doilies, Towels and Ladies' Waists; also Boudoir Sets consisting of Dresser Scarf, Pillow Centers, Laundry Bag and Pin Cushion; and some especially attractive Children's Dresses—some of which are ready made—of ratine crepes in white and colors and stamped in designs for solid embroidery and seed stitch. The sizes are 2 to 8 years.

All linens used in the preparation of stamped centers, towels, doilies, etc., is of the very best quality, and the pretty new designs are such as will instantly appeal to those who seek what is latest in needle-

The D. D. Whist club and the Fillmore street whist club have their meetings next week. Mrs. B. F. Akers will be hostess of the members of the D. D. club Monday afternoon, and Mrs. John E. Lord will entertain the Fillmore club on Thursday afternoon.

The model shown in the drawing today is a fashionable design developed in cinder grey whipcord with revers and collar lined with black and white silk, a color combination speaking loud-layer and Mrs. John E. Lord will entertain the Fillmore club on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. D. S. Shepard and Miss Nellie Shepard will go to Lawrence the latter part of the week to attend an anniversary celebration. Mrs. Shepard's cousin, Mr. Forest Savage, and Mrs. Savage will have guests Sunday to keep with them their sixty-fifth wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Savage are Kansas pioneers, and are remembered by many of the old settlers in and near Lawrence and in Topeka as well. They came to Kansas before the war, lived through the Quantrell Raid and all the other hardships of border life in pion-through the Quantrell Raid and all the other hardships of border life in pioneer days. Mr. Savage was a member of the famous Old Band that is always mentioned in connection with early Kansas history, and that played an important part in heartening the settlers of the eastern territory. Also they were among the founders of the old Plymouth Congregational meeting house of Lawrence. They came to Kansas from Vermont soon after their marriage, and their children. Miss Emma Savage, Miss Mary Savage, Mr. Frank Savage and Mr. Will Savage, are all living in Lawrence.

Designs based on Aztec arts are to be a feature of the silk to be put on the market for autumn fashions by a New York silk firm.

Paris always has been influenced in its selection of new styles and fabrics by wars. Hence we have had Balkan designs and styles and a little further back Japanese and Russian fashions followed the conflict of those nations.

But now that is to be changed, for the New York firm believes that American silks should depend on American talent and ideas for their designs and has not waited to see "what next" might be the intention of the French silk manufacturers.

The Badders case is supposed to be a business trial, but in these days of social duliness, it is being made something of a society event. Among the people seen in the courtroom daily since the case was called are a dozen or more of the smartly gowned and fashionable women of the social set. Whether it is an interest in frenzied finance or a lack of anything else to go to that inspires attendance at the trial it is hard to say.

Mrs. J. J. Henderson gave a thimble party Wednesday afternoon for the members of Mrs. Edgar Langstaff's Sunday school class. Those present were: Mrs. Langstaff, Mrs. W. H. Virtues of Olathe Heralded Abroad by Governor St. John.

Chicago, March 5.-While the rest of the world is struggling along in the throes of sin, there is a little town in sunny Kansas where vice, crime and "demon rum" abide not. The name of this moral arcadia is Olathe. One of its leading citizens is former Governor John P. St. John. the man who "dried up" Kansas in 1880 and who is in Chi-lemonade in Olathe. The official town drunkard has long since died, accord-ing to the former governor. Years ago the town calaboose was rented out as a the town calaboose was rented out as a stable and hasn't been needed since. Boys do not smoke cigarettes in that town; there's a law against it. Nor may lovers linger on the front porches later than 9 p. m.; the curfew rings then and Olathe is very strict about en-forcing its ordinances. On Sundays you can't buy a dish of ice cream; every-thing is closed except restaurants and the 16 churches.

"Yes, we do have 16 churches," the former governor apologetically con-fessed. "But we, the citizens, do not need so many. We use them to con-vert sinners from neighboring towns." Kansas City, Mo., is but 20 miles

The temperance leader gives Chicago from three to five years to learn to drink Bryan highballs. Prohibition will be countrywide then, he predicts.

Misfit Purchases

Careless buying frequently results in extravagance and disappointment. This comes from putting off your shop-ping until the last minute. It comes also from not knowing definitely what you want or what you need or where to get

Shoppers themselves are largely responsible for the ill-humor of salespeople. You have doubtless seen men and women shopping who had no idea of what they ought to buy. After taking up one or more salesperson's time fuss-ing and fretting and jumping from one thing to another, they buy something that doesn't suit or fit or please. All of this might be avoided by preparing one's self be-forehand. A few minutes careful reading of the advertisements appearing in The State Journal will inform one's mind and turn a disagreeable shopping tour into a pleasant afternoon The happiest shoppers are those who read the advertisements in The State Journal and in other live newspapers. They save time, money, and
